Cards Thursday, October 30, 2013 In the third and final installment of his look at stellar performances in the NFL, Playoff Push, I'll be taking a look at the best (but not necessarily the best relative to their context) Weeks 13-16 performances of each NFL team in 2013. Next up: the best performances of each team from Weeks 13-16 of 2013... When was the last time that a quarterback led his team to a comeback victory in the postseason? It may have been Seattle leading Seattle at the end of the first half in Super Bowl XLIX. At the time, it was an upset win that had nothing to do with the Seahawks' offensive line getting its ass handed to it during the regular season as Russell Wilson threw for 62 and one-half yards and the Seahawks defense was relatively helpless against Adam Thielen, despite the Vikings stellar defense in the NFC Championship Game. I was a little disappointed that Wilson was on the big stage in the end, but such is the game in the NFL (it's all about winning regardless of the circumstances). But all these quarterbacks are now on the biggest stage, so let's start there. *** It was eight long years ago, but the fact that Flacco and Manning were facing a winless team gives them a shot at history. Can they make a run at John Elway's six Super Bowls? One season after the Ravens were snubbed from the Super Bowl in favor of the Giants, Baltimore was once again desperate for a postseason berth. The team was faced with a must-win game to keep its hopes alive, and the best QB and MVP in the game was on the sidelines fighting back from a shoulder injury. Meanwhile, Flacco guided the Ravens to one of the best Super Bowl underdog performances since Steve Young reached down after taking contact. And don't forget the marching band. In the fourth quarter, with the game on the line, Flacco completed just four of ten passes for 59 yards. But Joe's accuracy was never better. And you know he was hitting guys deep after hearing the marching band. If Joe can call off the dogs, and the magic of December rises back to Baltimore... Super Bowl wins Super Bowl Champions - RedDOG Super Bowl Appearances Super Bowl MVP The greatest day in the NFL. The Ravens celebrate their Super Bowl XXXV victory
