The combination of methotrexate and alemtuzumab is being used in patients with rheumatoid arthritis (RA). However, its clinical efficacy needs further investigation in large-scale randomized controlled studies. We report here a case of a patient with RA who responded to the therapy with these two agents. A 62-year-old woman was admitted to our hospital for evaluation of polyarthritis. X-rays showed destructive changes in the finger and wrist joints and were suggestive of seronegative RA. Methotrexate at a dose of 15 mg/week and alemtuzumab at a dose of 12 mg/week for 8 weeks were given. Three months later, a second course of alemtuzumab was administered, and methotrexate at a dose of 15 mg/week was added. Three months after the second course of alemtuzumab, prednisolone had to be started because of gradual dose increase because of bone erosion in the wrist and finger joints. After the
