La ministre de la Santé Gaétan Barrette a évoqué mercredi un «rituel d'incinération qui s'apparente à une des plus grandes injustices humaines qu'on puisse imaginer». «Il y a des gens qui se voient témoigner que leurs effluves sont cachés, que leurs médecins ont fait un «non» pour des raisons personnelles, et qu'ils n'ont pas le droit d'être enterrés. Toute personne qui a 40 ans en plus de la date de la mort a le droit de demander d'être enterré», a affirmé mercredi Gaétan Barrette, lors d'une réunion sur les modalités de la mort à l'Hôpital de Montréal. Plus de 57 000 morts dans le monde méritent d'être enterrés mais seuls 3,3 % de ceux-ci peuvent le faire, a-t-il fait valoir. «Il y a des gens qui sont condamnés à vivre à jamais écartés de leur propre corps et de leur propre chair. C'est un rituel incroyablement cruel.» «Les gestes d'adieu qui furent réalisés par (le docteur Paul) Beauchamp, (le vice-président en gériatrie) Vincent Bigras et plusieurs médecins ont été sauvages. C'est la raison pour laquelle le docteur Beauchamp a décidé de se retirer et d'oublier ses promesses», a-t-il insisté. Il a toutefois dit ne pas penser que le Québec a le rôle de mettre fin à «cet rituel». «Nous sommes les Français du Québec», a ajouté M. Barrette.
